

Global Kids Online

Children's rights in the digital age

www.globalkidsonline.net

- How are children going online worldwide?
- In what contexts? With what consequences?

Global Kids Online is an international research project that aims to generate and sustain a rigorous cross-national evidence base for children's use of the internet by creating a global network of researchers and experts. We connect evidence with international dialogues regarding policy and practical solutions for children's well-being and rights in the digital age, especially in the global South.

With principal investigators Professor Sonia Livingstone and Jasmina Byrne, Global Kids Online is a collaboration between the London School of Economics and Political Science (LSE), the UNICEF Office of Research-Innocenti, and the EU Kids Online network.

Research results

Findings on children's online access, risks and opportunities are now available from: Argentina, Brazil, Bulgaria, Chile, Montenegro, Philippines, Serbia and South Africa.

Tools for researchers

www.globalkidsonline.net/tools

Global Kids Online has developed an open-access multi-method research toolkit in collaboration with country partners, experts, and international advisers.

The research toolkit includes:

- Quantitative tools: a modular survey for children aged 9 to 17 and their parents.
- Qualitative tools: materials needed for conducting and analysing individual interviews and focus groups with children.
- Method guides: expert guidance and practical research advice on key issues.
- Adapting the tools: resources for adapting the tools to different contexts.
- Impact tools: resources that help you to work effectively with key stakeholders.

Resources for children, parents and educators

Using the findings from the study, we have developed resources for children which can be used with educational purposes.
